

PETITION

To Weld and Larimer County Commissioners and State of Colorado representatives and officials:
We, the undersigned residents of northern Colorado, are deeply concerned about proposals to mine uranium in our area.

- According to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's 2007 report, in situ leach mining has a history of contaminating water.
- Uranium mining provides material used for nuclear power, and our area would benefit far more from renewable energy development, such as wind and solar energy.
- Uranium mining benefits out-of-state companies, not our local economies.

We urge our representatives and public officials to:

- Avoid providing any permits that would allow uranium mining until all questions about safety, health, and water quality are answered by those who propose to mine.
- Develop regulations that protect your constituents from the use of in situ leaching technology to mine uranium in Colorado.
- Promote economic development that provides for local people and meets local needs.
